NORTH KOREAN COLLEGES INVITE FORMER STUDENTS TO RE-ENROLL

Comment and Summary: The 18 September and 7 October 1952 issues of the P'yongyang daily, Nodong Sinmun, published notices of a technical college and a teachers college inviting students who had been discharged from the military service to re-enroll. Kim Ch'aek Technical College, whose name was changed in 1951 from P'yongyang Technical College following the death of Kim Ch'aek, particularly invited third-year and fourth-year students to return. Similarly, P'yongyang Teachers College asked ex-service students to re-enroll.

The Kim Ch'aek Technical College observed the graduation of the third graduating class. The president of the college claimed that this college has graduated 605 students since 1949, and that many of them attained high scholastic records.

KIM CH'AEK TECHNICAL COLLEGE GRADUATES 605 -- P'yongyang, Minju Choson, 4 Oct 52

On 27 September 1952, Kim Ch'aek Technical College observed the graduation of the second-semester group of the third graduating class. Chang Ik-hwan, president of the college, said in his congratulatory speech that on 17 May 1952 this college graduated the first-semester group of the third graduating class from its nine departments; and that, since 1949, when the college graduated its first graduating class, this institution has graduated 605 students.

Speaking of the scholastic achievements of the students, Chang reported that 70 percent of the graduates have received marks of distinction on their theses, and all other students have made fine records. Eleven of the graduates obtained scholastic marks of highest distinction.
